

BUFFALO SOLDIERS

The name "Buffalo Soldiers" was given to the African-American soldiers of the 10th Cavalry of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas by the Cheyenne Indians because of their "wooly hair", courage and fighting skills. The Buffalo Soldiers of Seattle honor the great heritage created by a select group of men who fought and died for their country in the Cavalry and Infantry during the late 1800s. Visit their historic encampment near Frontier Village every day.

PIONEER ENCAMPMENT

Longhorn Cattle Company tries to bring the Old West and western lifestyle to youngsters of today, demonstrating life in the early years of our great nation. Cowboy style transportation, the Chuck Wagon carried everything needed to create a home on the road. U.S. mail, supplies and people, traveled west in stage coaches, pulled by oxen or horses.

MARTY DAVIS takes you back to the trails you rode as a little cowpoke; an avenue down the paths of honor and integrity. From the costuming to the rich vocal presentations.

Marty Davis brings back all those grand memories of yesteryear when good really did win out over evil.
